Tucson Paper Bought by Post-Dispatch

TUCSON, Ariz., April 10 (AP)—The Pulitzer Publishing Co., publisher of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, purchased the Arizona Daily Star today for an estimated $10 million. ✓

Michael E. Pulitzer, assistant managing editor of the Post-Dispatch, announced the purchase. He is the new editor and publisher of the Star, a morning newspaper.

William A. Small, Jr., is publisher of the Tucson Daily Citizen and was owner of the Star for six years before its sale. The sale comes after a lengthy federal antitrust suit against the Star and Citizen by the Justice Department.

In approving the purchase of the Star, the Justice Department required that Pulitzer Publishing Co. agree to sell KVOA-TV in Tucson within a year.
